

ABSTRACT

A personalized media service is provided wherein a user may select a media request from a list of available media for printing as a hardcopy. The media request may be customized in accordance with specified user preferences such that a content provider may provide the user with a tailored media experience.